

Scuba diving at Grand iseland

Scuba diving at Grand Island in Goa is a popular activity among tourists and locals alike. The island, located off the coast of the state, is known for its clear waters and rich marine life.

The best time to go scuba diving at Grand Island is during the monsoon season, from June to September, when the waters are calm and visibility is at its best. The island is home to a wide variety of fish and coral species, including parrotfish, angel fish, and clownfish. Divers can also spot sea turtles, dolphins, and even the occasional shark.

Before diving, it is important to ensure that you are properly trained and certified. Most diving operators in Goa offer training courses for beginners, as well as guided dives for certified divers. It is also important to bring your own diving gear or rent it from the dive center.

During the dive, it is important to follow proper diving etiquette and guidelines to ensure the safety of yourself and the marine life. This includes not touching or disturbing the coral, being mindful of your air consumption, and staying within the limits of your diving certification.

Grand Island is also popular for its shipwrecks, which are home to an abundance of marine life and offer an exciting diving experience for experienced divers. The most famous shipwreck is the Suzy wreck, which lies in 15m of water and offers a great opportunity to see a variety of marine life.

After the dive, many diving centers offer facilities for divers to shower and change, as well as equipment rental and storage. Some also offer dive logs, where divers can record their dive details and log their dive experience.

Overall, scuba diving at Grand Island in Goa offers a unique opportunity to explore the underwater world and experience the rich marine life of the region. It is important to be properly trained and follow safety guidelines to ensure a safe and enjoyable diving experience.